

Reading lists – Art A-level

What are you looking at ? Will Gompertz

Think Like an Artist: . . . Will Gompertz

Ways of seeing John Berger

Exhibitions/ Museums & Galleries

Royal Academy Virtual Exhibitions: <https://www.royalacademy.org.uk/article/9-virtual-exhibition-art-tours-to-watch-online>

Andy Warhol at Tate Modern: <https://www.tate.org.uk/whats-on/tate-modern/andy-warhol/exhibition-guide>

Websites

Tate art student resource: <https://www.tate.org.uk/art/student-resource>

Subscribe to the Hyperallergic mailing list, which is a New York-based arts organisation. They always have plenty of interesting art articles and podcasts touching on current issues across the world...

The V&A is running a TV series of how the museum works behind the scenes... you can check it out here.

And (if you don't already!) start following your favourite artists on Instagram or Facebook. So many artists are doing some great live stream videos covering a variety of areas such as their practice, advice to artists, projects you can complete. We recommend Grayson Perry & Anthony Gormley

For those of you thinking/planning to study art in higher education, this is the perfect time for you to learn about publications, organisations, artists, new skills; anything you can squeeze in whilst you have the time is a great way to enhance your application and your artistic practice.